The Templed Hills

Upon the hills above the wide Missouri
Well-canopied with sycamore and oak
The first Americans once built their wigwams
A free, and hardy, and courageous folk.
Then, where the mighty river bends to eastward
To roll in splendor to the mother sea
The pale-faced scouts and trappers found a landing
And there a trading-post was sure to be.

To this frontier of pioneers and traders
Came dusty covered-wagons from the East,
Log cabins grew, and shops, and friendly taverns
With meat for man and fodder for his beast.
Then law and order came, and rough-hewn chapels
And rustic schools in clearings on the hills
For home, and church and school and court of justice
Are man's defense in fending human ills.

Long wagon-trains outfitting in our village
Rolled westward on a wild and rutted way,
The men of oak-and-iron brought their cargoes
From Westport Landing on to Santa Fe.
Again the Spirit of the West took chances
And ponies raced against the odds of Fate
The fearless riders fetching longed-for letters
From Kansas City to the Golden Gate.

A hundred years, and now our gracious city
Is gleaming like a star, and prospering,
With mart and mill, with mansion and with cottage
And avenues and parks where robins sing.
We love the templed hills where schools are growing,
East High the one that we remember best,
Here are our jewels, our beloved children
The hope, the treasure of the golden West.

The Pioneer Mother

The Pioneer Mother, a memorial to the women who braved the hardships of the West, was sculptured by Alexander Phimister Proctor. It stands today in Penn Valley Park, not far from the spot where the Santa Fe Trail used to pass.

The sculptor, in an attempt to portray the pioneer woman with importance and beauty, finally conceived the idea of a group including the pioneer woman on horseback, a packhorse, and two men. This biblical inscription from the book of Ruth is found on the base of the monument: "Whither thou goest, I will go and where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people and thy God, my God." Another inscription reads: "To commemorate the pioneer mother, who with unfaltering trust in God, suffered the hardships of the unknown west to prepare for us a homeland of peace and plenty."

Dedication

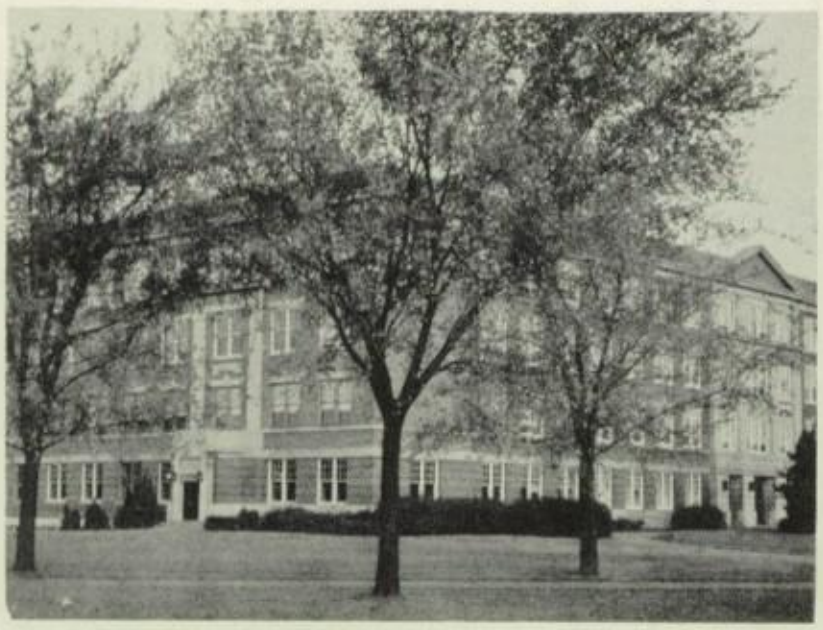
"Everything is up to date in Kansas City.
They have gone about as fur as they can go."

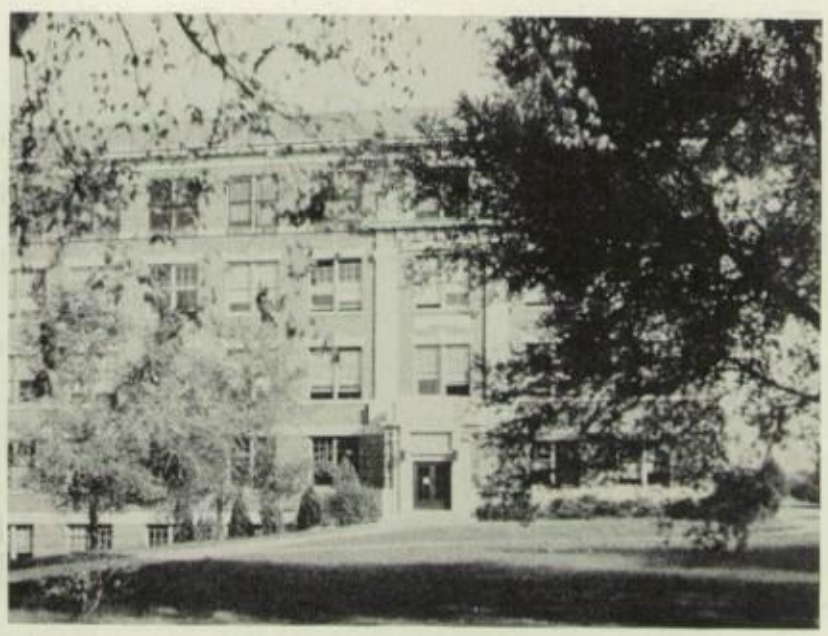
Kansas Citians will only partially agree with this quotation from one of the songs in the popular musical play "Oklahoma." From its early beginning as two roaring frontier settlements, Kansas and Westport ,through the development of the 1890's and "Quality Hill" to the great "Heart of America" of today, the energy, vitality, initiative, and ambition of its citizens have not only kept Kansas City up to date, but have provided the impetus for unlimited progress commercially, industrially, and culturally.

Ruddy frontiersmen showed intelligence when they chose the region near the junction of the Missouri and Kaw Rivers for the site of the town which was later to be called the "Gateway to the West." The go-getting, hard-working, and aggressive spirit of its citizens made Kansas City the thriving outpost for the "forty-niners." Now, just one hundred years later, this same enthusiastic spirit has made Kansas City one of the most outstanding cities of the Middle West. The "forty-niners" were sturdy pioneers. We, also "forty-niners," must pioneer too, not in California for gold, but in our minds for intelligent thinking, in our hearts for love, and in our souls for peace.

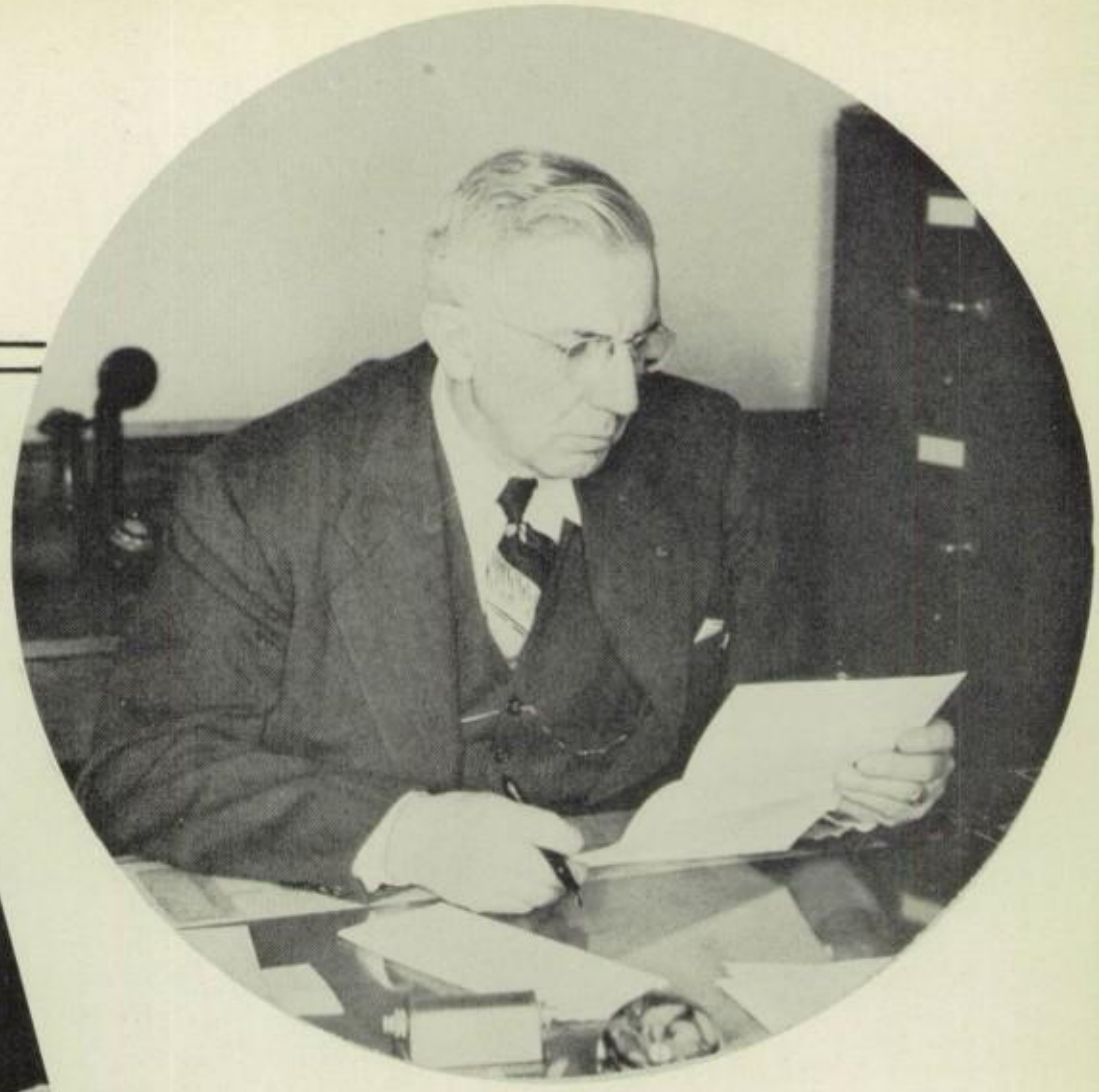
We are important members of a great country, a great city, and a great school. We know of a spirit of nationalism and of internationalism, but stronger in our minds is the spirit which began in 1821, the spirit of Kansas City. Kansas City—first among stocker and feeder cattle markets, second in grain elevator capacity, ninteenth in size, a great agricultural center.

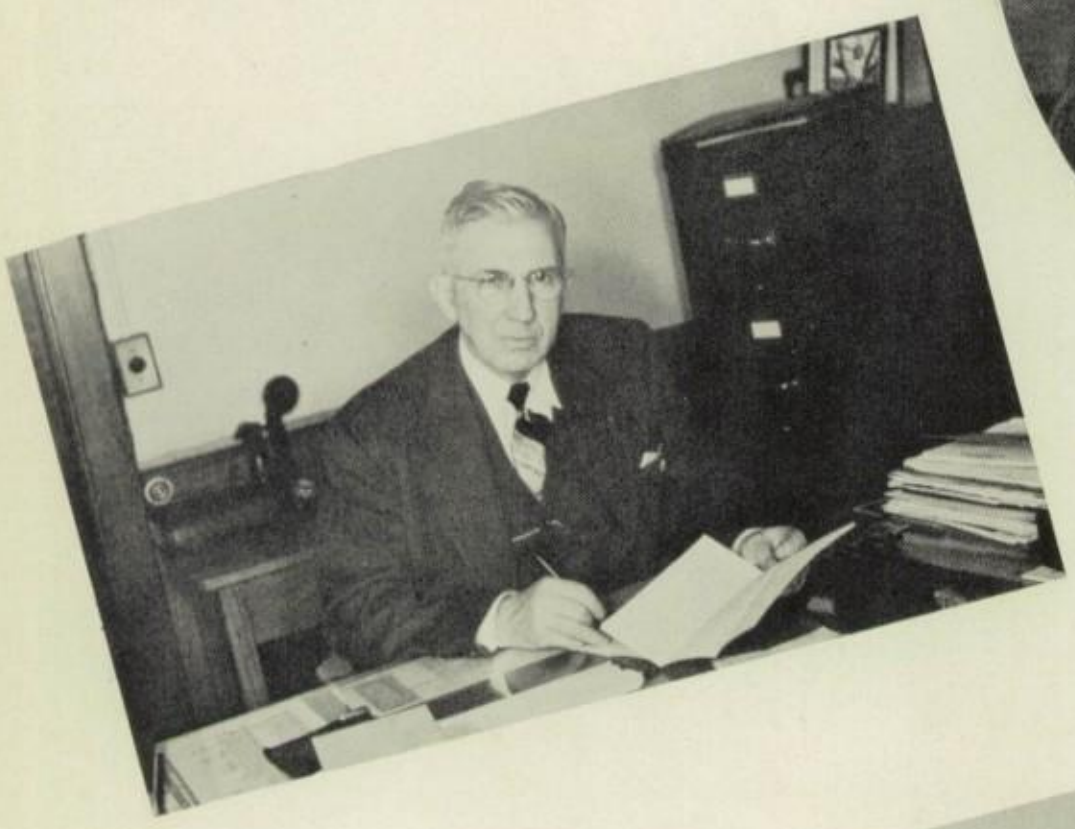
Yes, everything is up to date in Kansas City, but to her people there will always be new gold to be found and new frontiers to be conquered. It is to this spirit that we proudly dedicate the 1949 Eastonian.

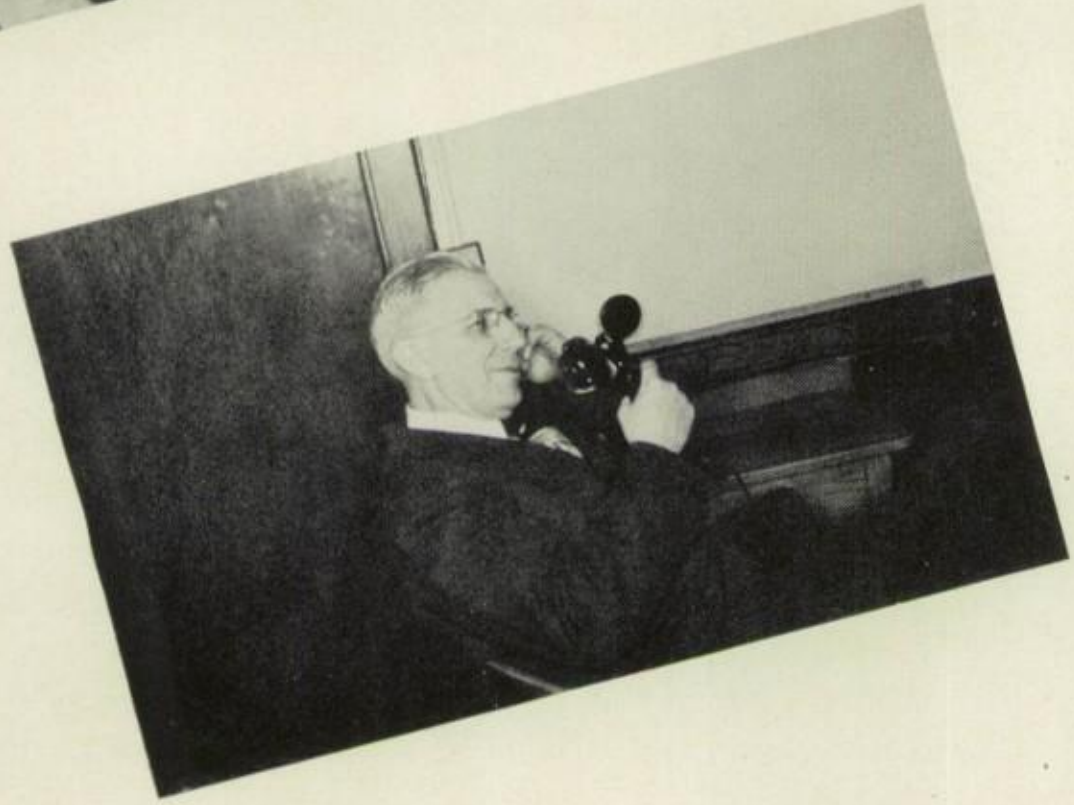




Administration





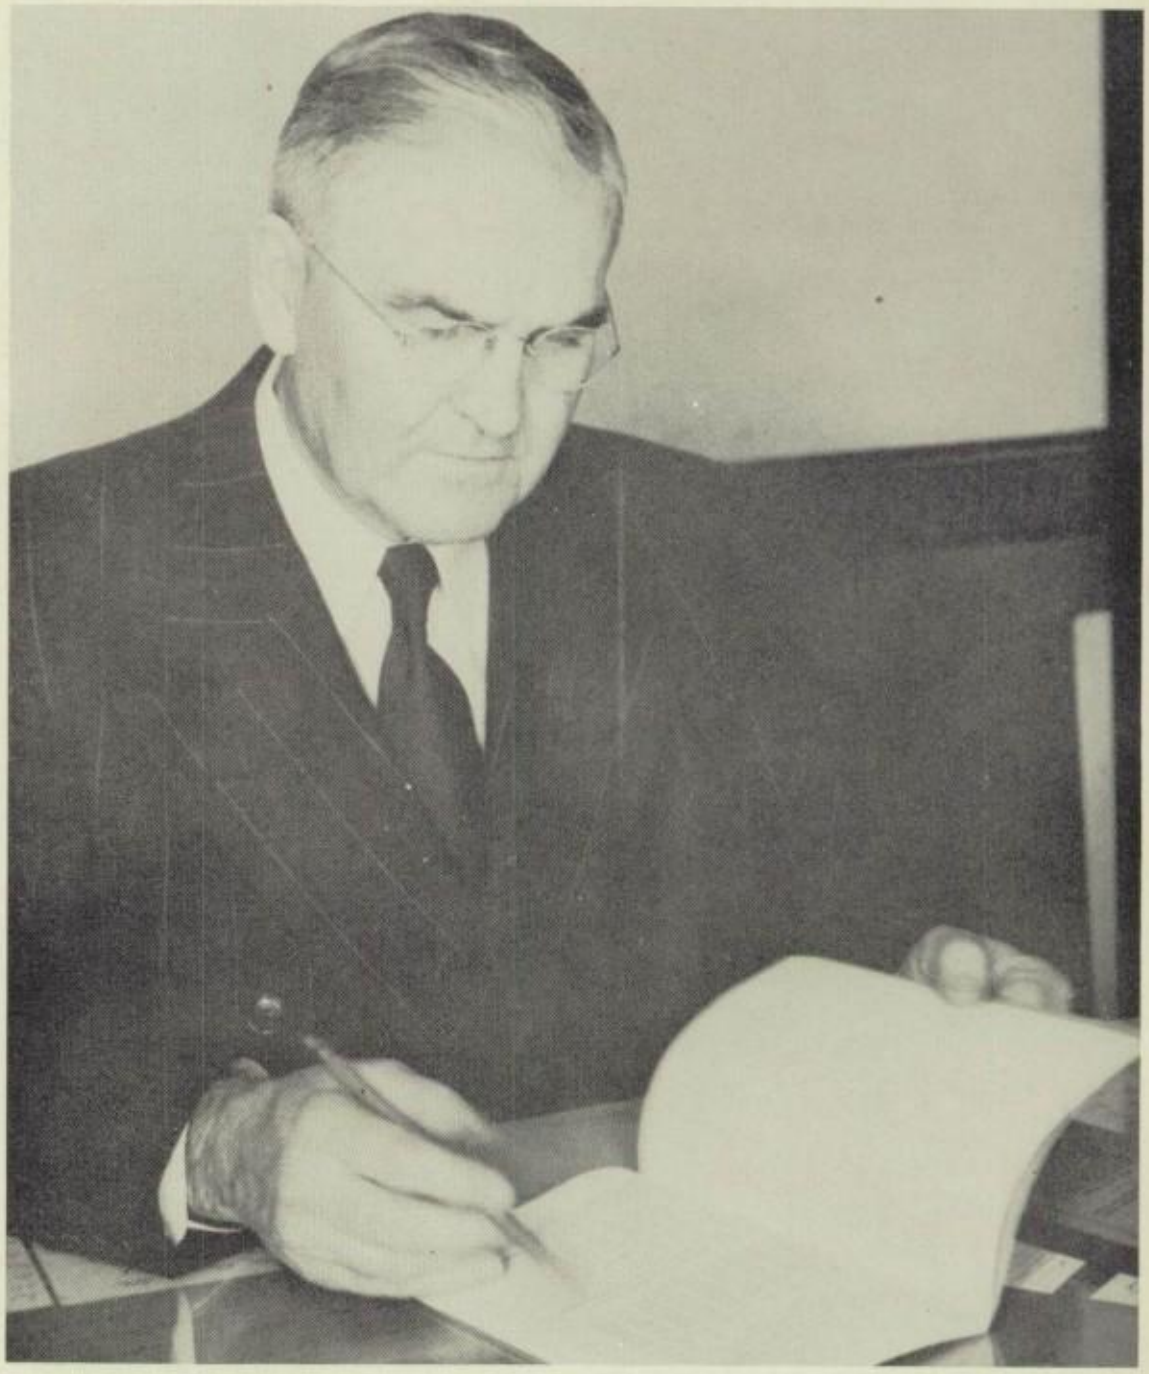


When school days at East are recalled in days to come, certain things will stand out. Among these are the kindness, the understanding, and the faith in young people of Mr. C. O. Williams, our principal. Since his arrival here in 1945 to take over the supervision of a busy school, he has impressed students and faculty alike with his wise judgment. He is always available when there are problems to be solved, and he has helped many students to find their places in this world of today.

As well as being one of the pillars of East High School, Mr. Williams is a leader in civic and church affairs. His name is well known throughout the city as belonging to a man of dependability and wisdom.

Sponsoring the junior and senior classes, supervising extra-curricular activities, and seeing that the school runs smoothly and efficiently make Mr. J. N. Broadlick, our vice-principal, one of the busiest and most popular men at East. His signature may be found on any thing from a special excuse to an announcement in the bulletin.

Mr. Broadlick can be counted on to show an interest in the problems and achievements of all, and his pleasant smile and friendly word of greeting have made him a favorite among the students and faculty.



In her two and a half years of service at East High School, Miss Anna Stewart, counselor, has become well known to the students through her wise decisions and helpful suggestions. She has donated her time to aiding us to find the right vocation, and has information about most of the colleges in the country.

Mrs. Frances Maddi, registrar, and Mrs. Eulah Smith, secretary, compose the efficient office staff. In addition to their many duties, they also find time to take an interest in the students.

Seniors Today—Citizens Tomorrow

At the brink of a new way of life stands the graduating senior. How short a time it seems since he was entering East High School for the first time, a timid freshman. And now, with the receipt of a diploma, life will cease to be a round of classes, ball games, dates, homework, and family and friends. There is the problem of choosing a career, of taking one's place in society as an adult, and of becoming a citizen of the community.

In this atomic age, there is still that better mousetrap to be built and a better city government to be achieved.

In Politics, Too, It's "Show Me"

"Patterns and People," a report on basic planning data published by the City Plan Commission, is the topic of discussion as the Mayor of Kansas City, William E. Kemp, talks with these East High School representatives, Irene Sevier, Ted Violett, Nancy Boehm, and Farris O'Dell.

East and other high schools learn about municipal government on High School Day in City Hall, when representatives are sent to actually take over positions in the city government for one day. Within East High School contact is maintained between the administration and student body by means of the Student Council, which is composed of representatives from each home room.

East attempts to instill in young people not only a knowledge of academic skills but also the ability to take an active part in community affairs. In this way, Kansas City helps to maintain her reputation for progressiveness in a progressive age.

The Governing Body

A meeting of the Student Council calls for discussion of matters brought to the attention of the group. In the background, Dale Amos rises to be recognized by the presiding officer, Jo Ellen Ruse, while Martha Brown, secretary, takes notes.

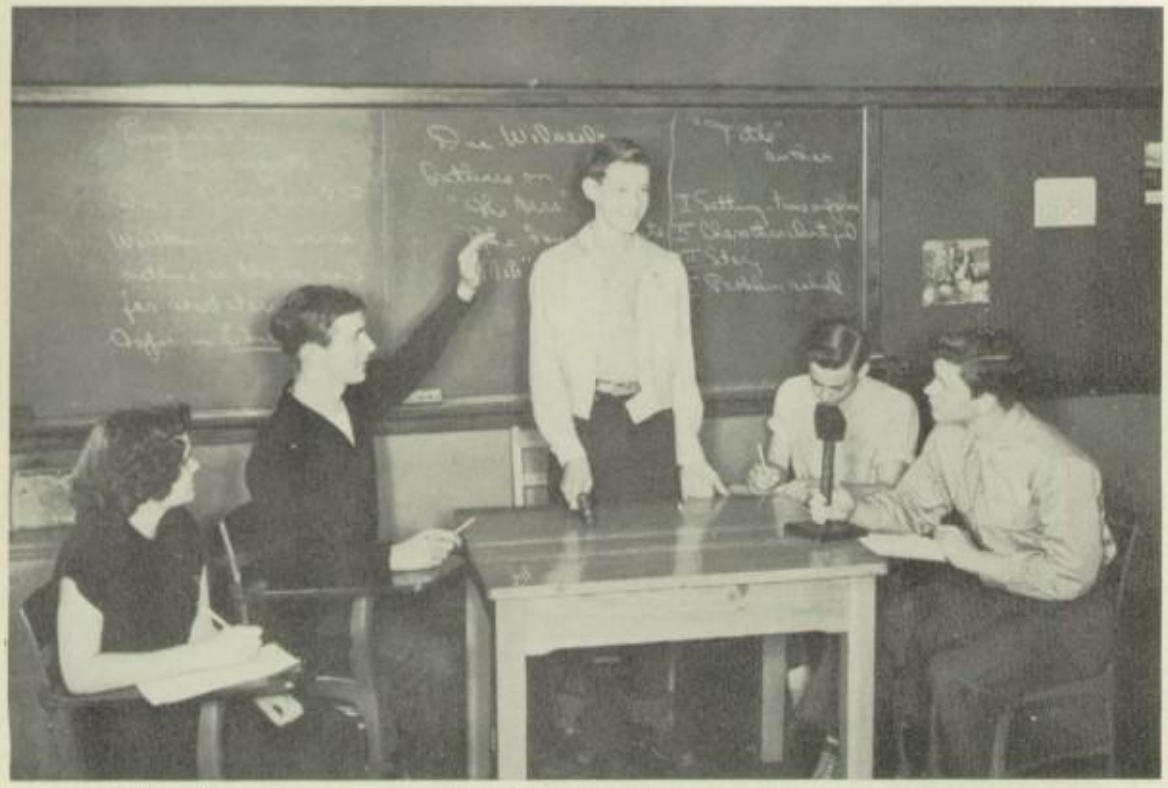
The Student Council

Through representatives to the Student Council, each individual in East High School is kept in touch with school affairs. It is this body, composed of the presidents of the home rooms, which plans mixers and assemblies, endeavors to make improvements in the building, and acts as a medium of arbitration between administration and students.

The Council was organized to fulfill an ideal—that of a united group, working toward common goals with each member carrying a share of the responsibility. It is through this type of organization that pupils recognize that obedience to the authority manifested by rules upon which they have voted, is necessary in a well-ordered school.

English Department



"Are there any comments?" asks Seth Eberhart, chairman of this panel group. Other panel members are: (left to right) Carol Sue Geren, Robert Lewis, Dale Wall, and James Grady.

THE ENGLISH DEPARTMENT

Split infinitives, dangling participles—how involved these terms sound to the beginner! Our English course is planned to remove all doubts in regard to good grammar and to pave the way for each student along the path of correct English.

However, not only are the rudiments of English grammar learned, but the study of classics, both ancient and modern, conveys some idea to the student of the factors that make a book live. The development of America, of the world, in fact, may be traced by means of the great literature of the world.

In short, the English classes endeavor to develop each student's understanding of the writing and speaking skills.

"The square on the hypotenuse equals . . ." explains Donna Shields to the geometry class. At the blackboard also are Patty Smith, John W. Anthuis, Melvin Thursby, and Wesley Waddell.

THE MATHEMATICAL DEPARTMENT

In business, in industry, in the professions, a knowledge of the fundamental principles of mathematics is imperative if one is to succeed. The reasoning power gained may be applied to the problems which inevitably arise in everyday life.

At East it is required that all students learn at least the basic skills, and for those who wish to advance beyond this, courses in higher mathematics are offered.

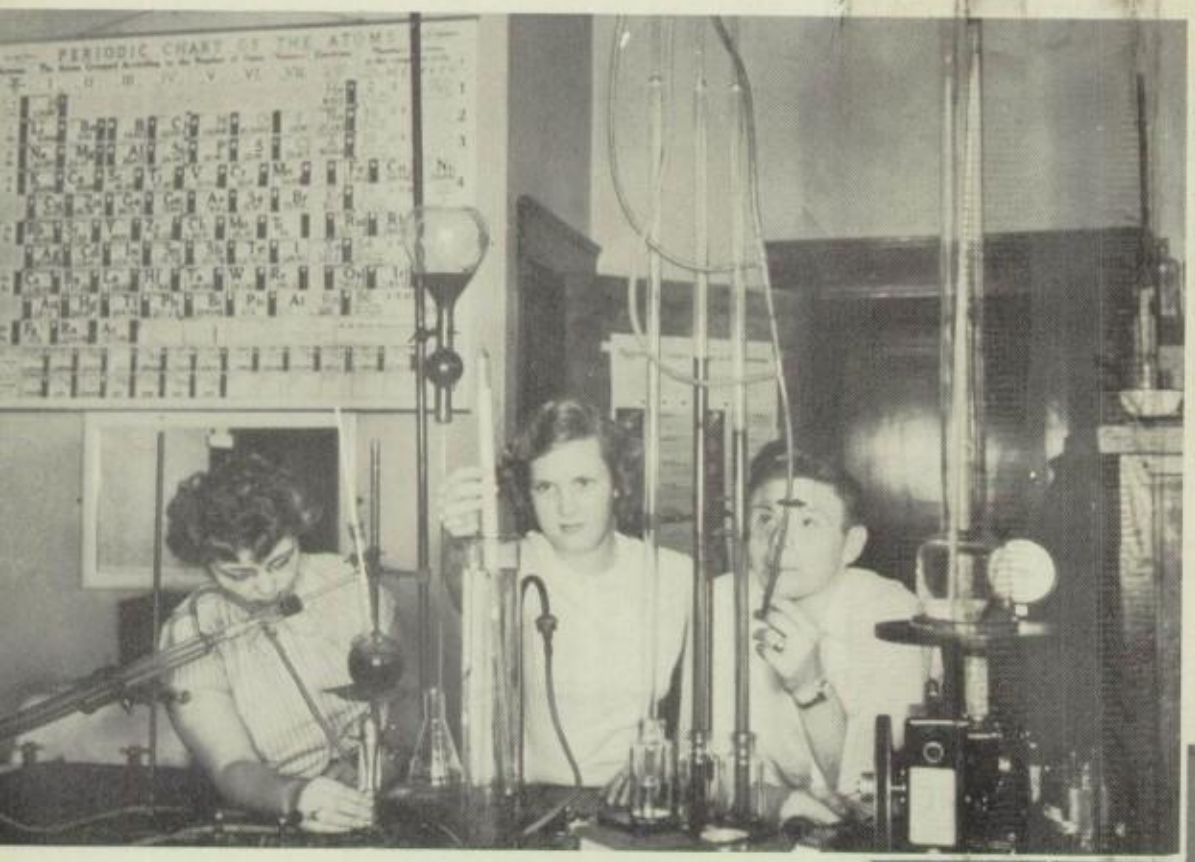
Science Department



Engrossed in this experiment in barometric pressure are Barbara Brown, Connie Shields, and George Palmer, chemistry students.

THE SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

Today, in our rapidly changing world, Science is constantly playing a more important part in our community. Science has brought us from an era of the horse drawn carriage to one of sleek motor cars and jet propelled aircraft. It has almost eliminated smallpox as a disease, and is relentlessly working to discover new drugs to improve the health of the community.

Our schools have the great responsibility of training the future scientists and teaching the next citizens of our community to accept new inventions and ways of living. The only defense against the atom bomb, poison gas, and bacteriological warfare is education. People must be educated to live together in peace.

Social Science Department

"We Want Truman!" chants the American Problems class at the height of the campaign. Leading the cheers is Tommy Butcher. Seated at the table are Bert Larkin, Hugh Wilson, Dale Amos, and Ted Violett.

THE SOCIAL SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

From the presidential campaign to the political crisis in Korea, the social science department offers us complete coverage of the news. In order that we might have sufficient foundation for the study of world events, this department gives us basic training in history. Students are taught to develop their talents, since social science teachers stress learning through oral reports, art work, and written essays.

The use of movies to emphasize important points is becoming more and more extensive in this department. Social science courses allow students to exercise initiative through a logical program of studying society.

Common Learnings

THE COMMON LEARNINGS DEPARTMENT

More than one-third of a sub-freshman's school day is spent in his common learnings class, where he learns the language arts and science correlated with the basic subject, social studies. Extensive reading of books and periodicals broadens his knowledge and helps him to become a successful citizen in his school and community. It is during this period that he gradually makes the change from grade school to high school life.

The ideas for this summary were contributed by Miss Ota Crosthwait's afternoon common learnings class.

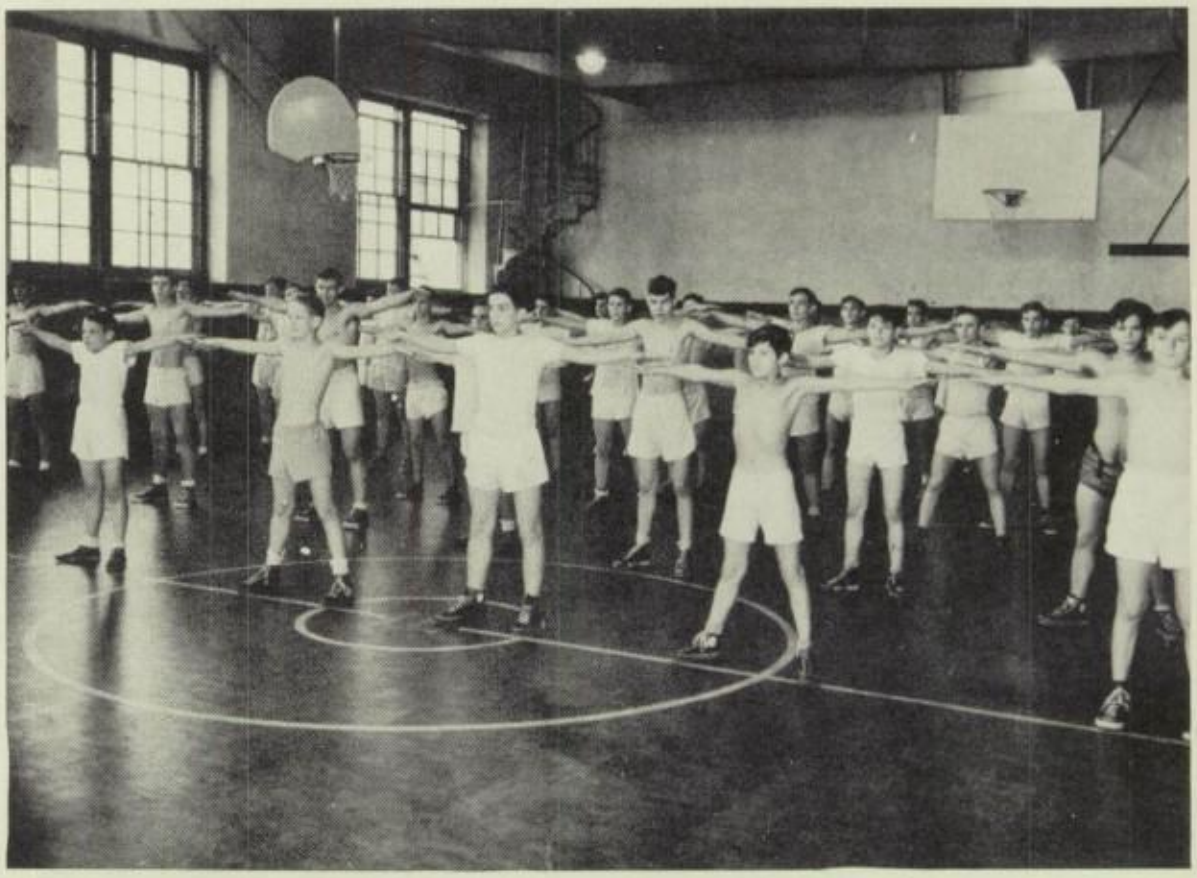
Boys' Physical Education Department



Keeping in the pink of condition is hard work, but it's worth it!

Physical education is an indispensable part of the health program of the Kansas City schools. It develops a variety of recreational interests and skills and builds desirable attitudes of teamwork, sportsmanship, and respect for others.

There is a program of intramural athletics and an extensive interschool competitive program in a variety of sports. The activities are designed to develop habits of exercise conducive to continuing health and fitness.

GIRLS' PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Through competitive sports such as hockey, baseball, basketball, volleyball, ping-pong, and aerial darts, girls in the physical education classes develop strong bodies, keen minds, and the ability to win graciously and lose gracefully. Participation in games held after school offers to those interested an opportunity to win awards.

"To East High School, brave and true . . ."
The East High Band Marches in the American Royal Parade.

THE FINE ARTS

Through the study of the world's great masters in music, art, and oratory, the students in the fine arts courses are able to develop their own skills along these lines. What success can one attain today without the ability to express ideas clearly? Practice speaking is an aid to poise in the same way that working with the palette and brush develops technique in the artist or singing in a group improves harmony. The pleasure which is experienced from the creation of something beautiful, whether it is perfect harmony or a skillful drawing is compensation for the work entailed.

THE PRACTICAL ARTS

It is not difficult to find the practical arts classes, for the hum of machines and the steady clicking of typewriters characterize these parts of the building.

In these classes future typists, mechanics, homemakers, carpenters, and metalworkers are a few of those trained to take their places in the world of business and industry. Through actual practice, skill is increased and experience gained in the chosen crafts.

Pupils Take Part In Community Activities

Dynamite comes in little packages. These Red Cross boxes will be a powerful weapon for good upon reaching Europe. Packing the boxes are: (left to right) Jackie Hendricks, Margaret Glathaah, Patty Edgell, Camille McDonald, Charmaine Long, Wanda Bransit, and Jeannine Coate. Miss Celia Waring was the faculty adviser.

American Education Week

Approximately 2,500 visitors attended the Open House held at East High School the evening of November 9. The program was planned around the theme of American Education Week, "Strengthening the Foundations of Freedom". Parents and friends visited the teachers in the classrooms, and later attended the program in the auditorium.

"The Berlin Blockade" was the subject being discussed by this group of social science students. These members of Miss Gilliland's history class planned their United Nations program for American Education Week. Left to right: Curtis Hill, Carol Austin, Earl Courts, Richard Yates, Melvin Thursby, Jim Cade, Jerry Adams, Sue Cawby, Irene Sevier, Lloyd Hales, and Joe Gimmarro.

It's The Center For Fellowship

"The parents and friends of the pupils of this school and the young people of this community have accomplished, at quite a sacrifice of money and labor, one of the finest projects of any community in the country. I have reference to the new East Community Center." This statement made by Mr. C. O. Williams, Principal of East High School, exemplifies the feeling of members of the East Side Community Center.

When the residents of this section of the city realized that there was no place for teen-agers to gather for good, wholesome association they purchased an old church and completely redecorated it to make a dance floor, a snack bar, a library, a game room, and various rooms for crafts, and other activities. Their enthusiasm was not of the mushroom type and their co-operation made possible economic and quick delivery of material and labor. Thus the East Community Center came to be.

Most certainly they're up to date in Kansas City when it comes to youth community projects.

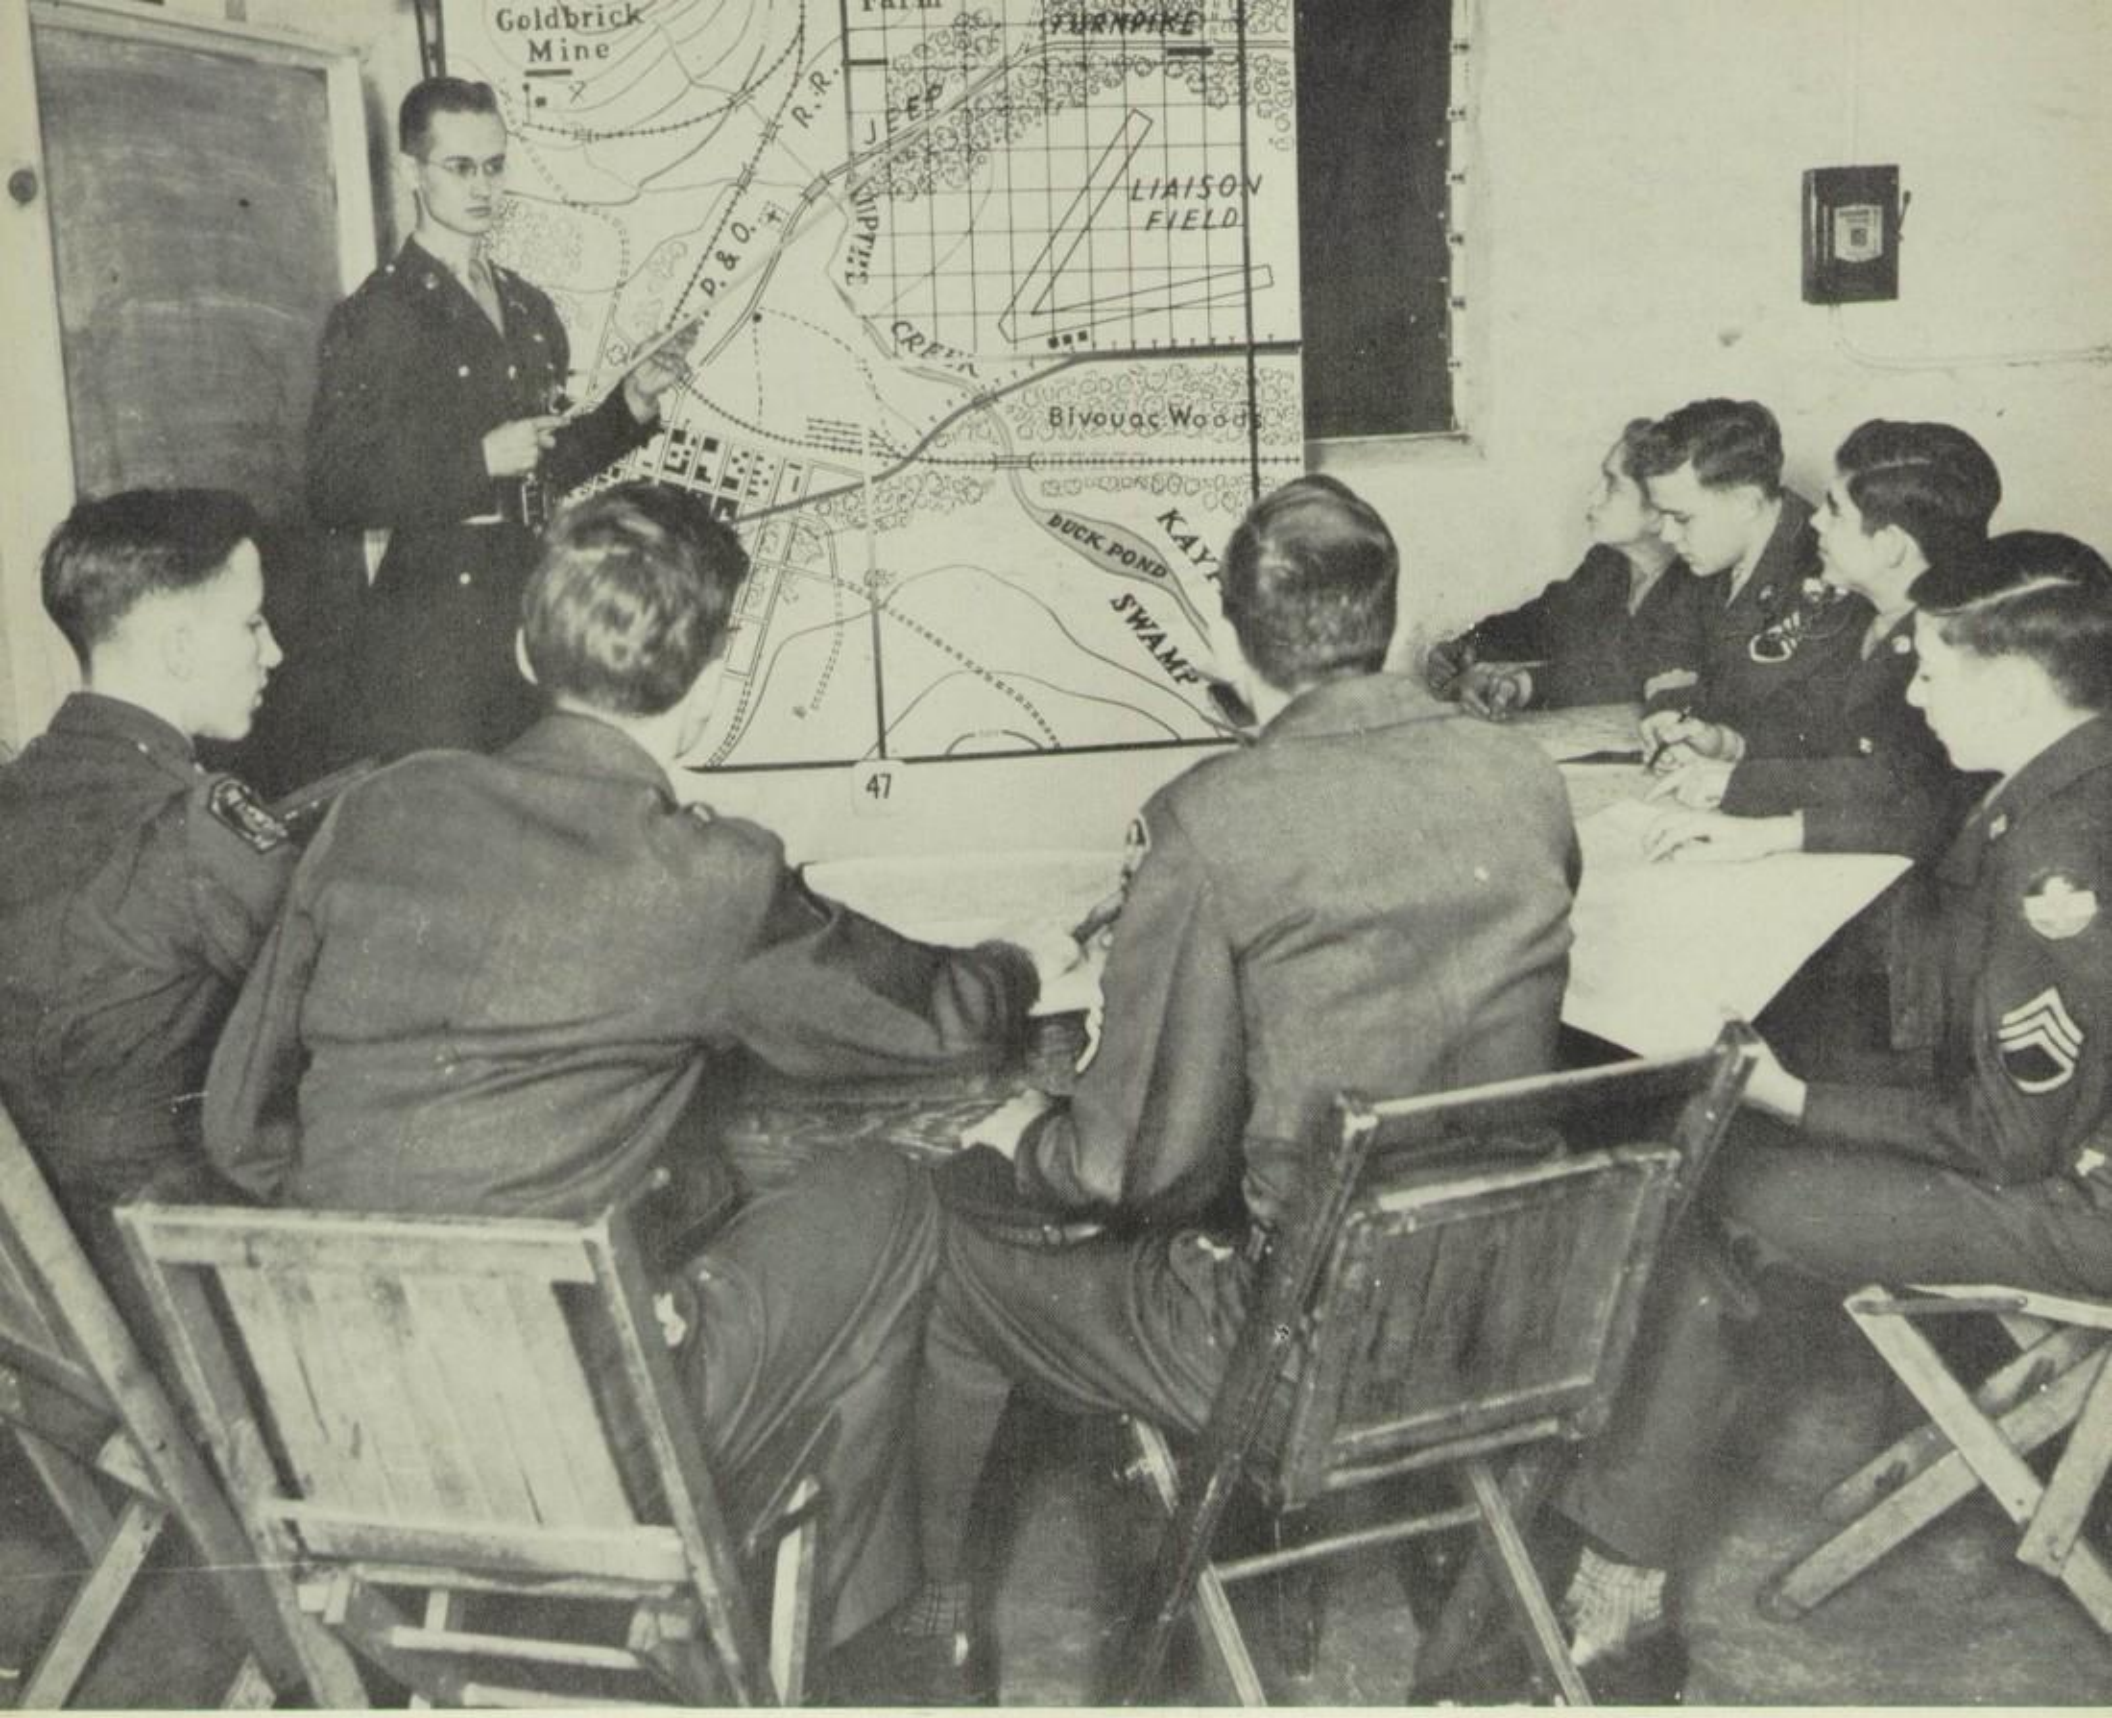
Eastonian — 1949

This year, we, the members of the Eastonian staff, have endeavored to make your yearbook one which appeals to you, the students of East High School—you, who are, after all, the main characters in this drama of school life. We've pictured you at work, at play and in the midst of activities which are both work and play. We've shown the faculty both informally and formally. We've presented the administrative staff of East in everyday duties, necessary for keeping a large school operating smoothly. Now, looking at the finished product we see a record of a year of scholastic achievement, exciting activities, and important milestones.

Under the leadership of Farris O'Dell, editor-in-chief, Barbara Fenton, assistant editor, Hugh Wilson, literary editor, Bert Larkin, layout editor, Ted Violett, sports editor, and Marilyn Redmon, who handled the business affairs, this year's course, though somewhat rocky, has been traversed. Our thanks go to the members of the faculty and student body who have lent assistance to our project, making the going much easier. Special appreciation goes to Miss Virginia Welch, editorial adviser, Mr. Wallace Grube, photographer, and Miss Minnie Baker, business manager, who have given so unselfishly of their time and effort to help us create a book worthy of East High School.



R.O.T.C. Develops Leadership

"We stoutly maintain that leaders are made, not born. The quality of leadership which we will painstakingly seek to develop and foster in the ROTC will have application to all walks of life. The graduate of ROTC must have acquired in his makeup the elements of mental and moral fitness, the desire to help and inspire his fellows that will mark him for leadership in any community in our land. If he is thoroughly trained, he will be the man to rely on—the one to respect—in danger or in calm."

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

In addition to the "routine" work, many interesting activities are sponsored by the ROTC. Among these are the Military Ball, this year held on April 29, and Field Day, when all the schools compete for honors in drilling. Cups and medals are received by the winning schools.

Rifle marksmanship is stressed in ROTC. Each student is required to fire on the range, and the best are selected to compete with other schools in the city and out of town teams.

R.O.T.C. Leaders

Master Sergeant Jack C. Miller is now in his third year as instructor of the East Battalion. After he graduated from high school, in McPherson Kansas, he enlisted in the Army. He has attended Officers Candidate School at Fort Benning, Georgia. He started as a Second Lieutenant and after three years of service was discharged as a Captain in February, 1946. Sergeant Miller was sent to Kansas City as an R.O.T.C. instructor when he re-enlisted as a Master Sergeant in April 1946. During the war he was overseas in Okinawa and Korea. The East R.O.T.C. is very fortunate to be under the able guidance of such an efficient and capable head as Sergeant Miller.

Discussing R.O.T.C. orders are left to right, Lt. Col. William R. Dudley, who assumed the duties of Lt. Col. Bob E. Edwards last summer as PMS&T of Kansas City High Schools; Maj. Myron W. Reed, assistant PMS&T, who supervises instruction at both East and Northeast High Schools; and Captain Fletcher who has just completed his first year as an instructor of the East Battalion. He is a graduate of Iowa State University where he received his commission as Second Lt. He went on active duty in June 1941. His war service was spent in the European theater and in the Army of Occupation in the Philippines after the war.

Major Vincent Kunzweiler has had high ambitions in the R.O.T.C. for, many years. He has worked hard to achieve the post of Major and Battalion Commander, highest in the East R.O.T.C. He is also an honor student.

Fair Play—Casey Mo's Motto

A tense moment in the game is reflected in the faces of these East students. They are participating in the recreational portion of the Kansas City school program.

From this kind of recreation, a sense of sportsmanship and a spirit of loyalty are developed by the spectators as well as members of the team. Moreover, the basketball and football games which are so much a part of each school year, are attended not only by students, but also by parents, faculty, and sports fans who make it a policy never to miss the exciting Interscholastic League battles which are waged among the high schools of Kansas City. The stands are usually packed with eager, cheering crowds, evidence that the city takes an interest in the activities of its youth. The football and basketball games are an integral part of the recreational program of Kansas Citians, both young and old.

Three Cheers for the Second Team

Leading the East boosters is the job of the cheerleaders

While Coach Field's second team could win only one game, the players received the experience and skill that will make them important cogs in East's future grid machines. Several of the Cubs demonstrated passing and running ability that should be most encouraging to the varsity coaches and some good line play was in evidence.

The Cubs made their best offensive showing of the season as they dropped their opener to Westport by a score 20-12.

The heretofore potent attack fizzled in the second game and the little Pirates of Paseo came out on top of a 13-0 score. Southeast, too, had little difficulty with the Cubs and found themselves with an 18-6 victory. Central's Eaglets defeated the Cubs 20-0.

The Indians from Southwest did not have such an easy time of it, but managed to leave the field, a 12-6 victor. Northeast's junior-sized Vikings were given a stiff fight too, but the breaks were bad and the Cubs slipped to an 8-0 defeat.

Just as it appeared that the little Bears were not going to taste victory, they downed the eleven from Manual 7-2. As it has been said many times, it is not the victories won that count so much as the lessons learned.

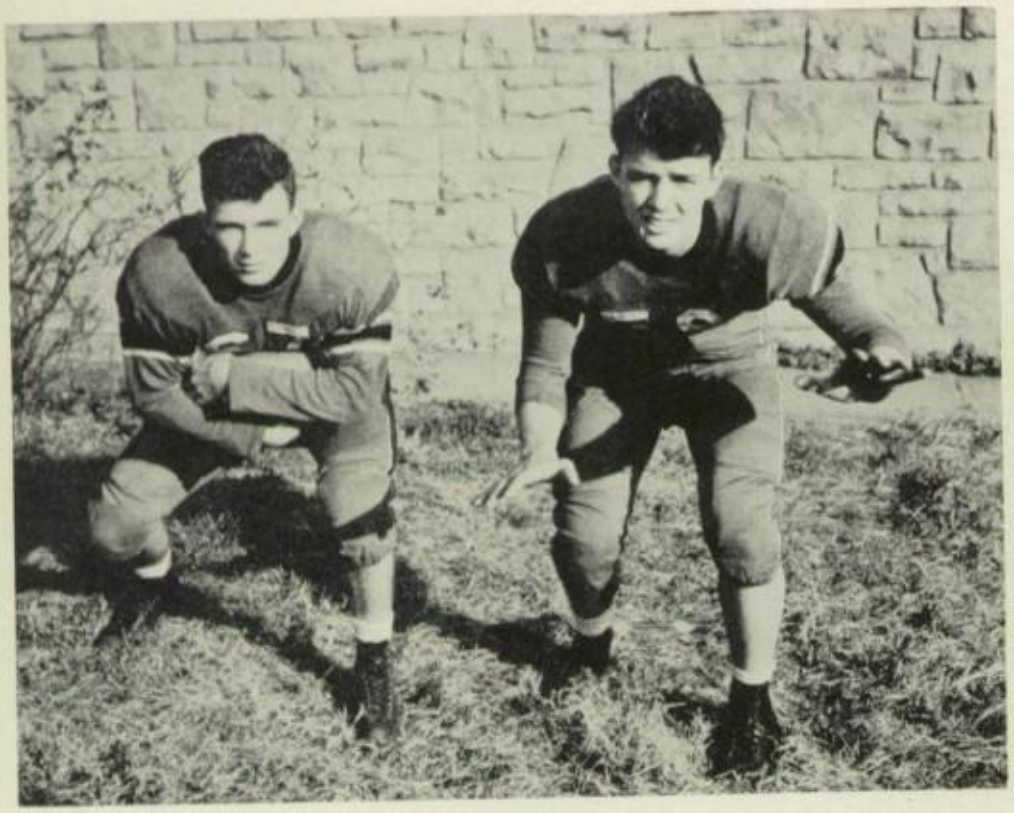
ANNUAL FOOTBALL BANQUET

Eat, drink and be merry seemed to be the general theme at the 1948 annual football banquet, as players and fathers alike, shared the glories of the past season. The festivities were held in the school cafeteria on November 23. All present agreed that it was a fitting close to a successful season.

Mr. Williams carves the turkey at the football banquet as Coach Brown and Mr. J. G. Bryan look on.

Turkey and trimmings and all the rest at the banquet served in the school cafeteria, November 23.



All-Star Berths to Two East Players

A passing combination that proved hard to beat and never went down without a fight was that of Dale Roark and Bob Cross. Their consistently outstanding play throughout the season earned each a berth on the 1948 Interscholastic League Football All-Stars. Roark, the Bears' flashy senior halfback, was the league's leading ground gainer, both in rushing and in passing. He was generally considerd that best back to have played in the Interscholastic League in recent years. Cross, a sophomore, was cited for his pass-catching ability, deadly blocking, and rugged defensive work.

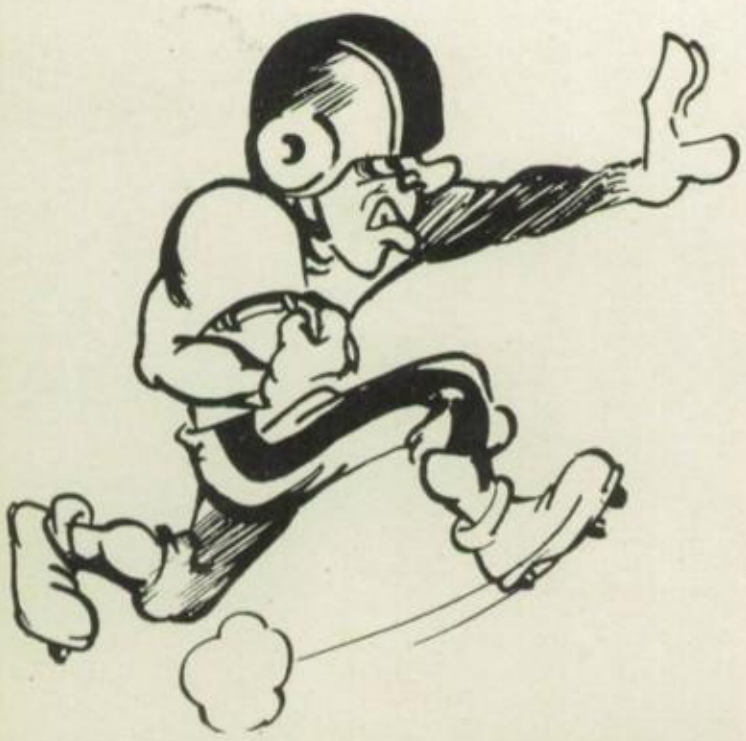
Interscholastic Football League

East 7—Westport 33

The Bears dropped the season opener to a powerful Westport team, but showed promise late in the game. The lone East touchdown came on a brilliant 46-yard run by halfback, Dale Roark.

East 19—Paseo 6

The Green and Black upset a favored Paseo eleven and marked themselves as one of the better teams in the loop. Paced by Roark, the Bruins showed a powerful passing attack.



East 6—Southeast 6

Handicapped by an injury to Jim Wells, starting fullback, the Bears managed to gain a tie with a fighting Southeast eleven. A long pass in the closing seconds proved to be too much for an East end and the game ended in a 6-all tie.

East 20—Central 0

In a fighting comeback after the Southeast game, the Bears completely outplayed a game Central team. Displaying a strong running and passing attack the Bruins seemed to have found that spark which was missing at the first of the season.

East 14—Southwest 20

A hard-fighting Bruin team saw victory taken away from them in the last minutes of play as the Southwest Indians pushed across the winning tally. In complete control for most of the game, the winning score came as a result of a much discussed pass interference play which set up the tally.

East 0—Northeast 20

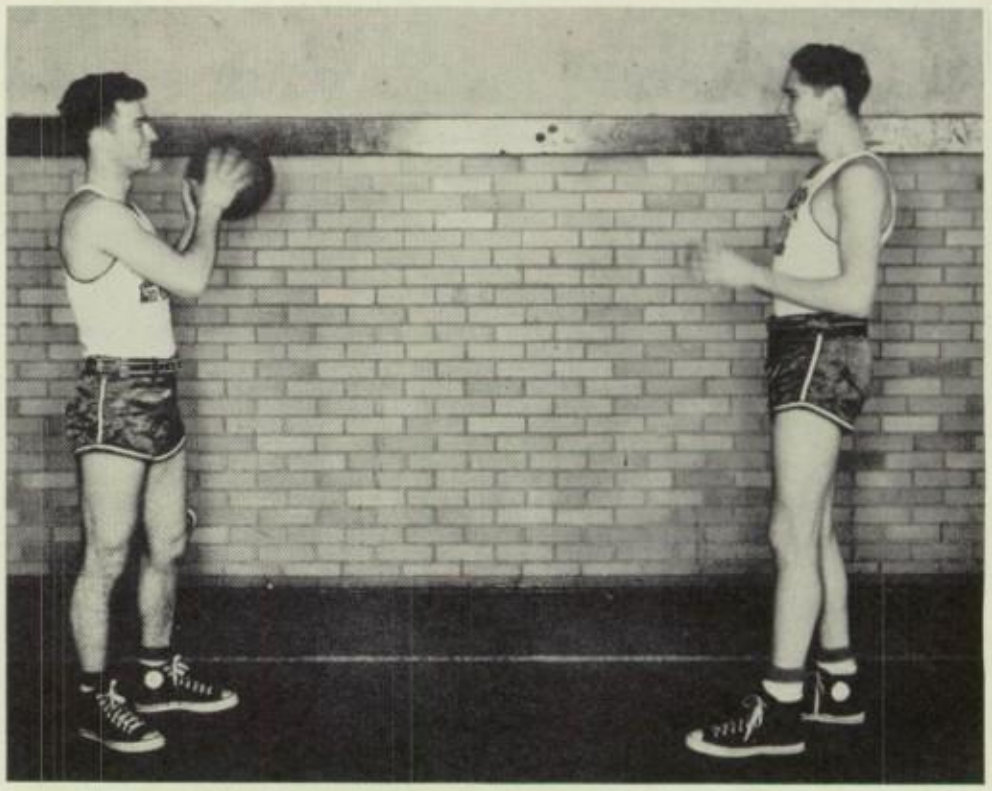
Held scoreless for the only time in the season, the Bears lost to the Northeast Vikings. Although the Bruin rushing attack was held to a scant 19 yards, the Bears were brilliant on defense as they completely stopped the Viking running attack in the second half.

East 18—Manual 6

Closing out the '48-'49 grid season the Bears ran over an outmanned Redbird eleven. Dale Roark, All-City halfback, accounted for 303 yards rushing and passing, in an individual performance that was by far the best of the season. In league play the Bears broke even, winning 3, losing 3, and tieing 1.

Bears Place Two on All-Stars

East was represented on the 1949 edition of the Interscholastic League Basketball All-Stars by Dale Roark and Norman Hughes. Roark was the unanimous choice for the first team. He is the only athlete in the league to receive All-Star recognition in both basketball and football. He was third in league scoring and, as on the gridiron, provided the necessary spark. Hughes, the Bears' dependable center, was elected to the second team. He was always a scoring threat, as well as being a good defensive player and a pillar of rebounding strength.



Interscholastic Basketball League

Southeast 37—East 35

The Bears dropped their league opener to the Southeast Knights in heartbreaking fashion. The score was tied several times before the much taller Knights pulled away to stay. Roark and Hughes carried the bulk of the offensive work..

Northeast 28—East 25

The Vikings' jinx over East stood them in good stead once more, as they staved off a desperate last minute rally to upset the Bears. Northeast built up a commanding lead in the early stages only to see it vanish before the final Bruin onslaught.

East 33—Manual 26

The Bears shook off an early spell of erratic shooting and came from a three point half-time deficit to grab their first league victory. The hapless Redbirds were unable to stop the second half attack as the Bruins operated in a fashion that measured up to previous expectations.

East 22—Westport 20

For the second time in two years the scrappy Bears rose to great heights to upset a heavily favored Westport team. East coupled an airtight defense and ball-controlling offensive tactics that obviously did not appeal to the fast breaking Tigers, to hand them their first defeat.

East 46—Paseo 44

The Bears threw caution to the winds and took advantage of a torried second half shooting streak to subdue the favored but, nonetheless, outclassed Pirates. The Bucs rallied in the closing seconds, but the lead was large enough to withstand the surge. Roark, Hughes, and Howey sparked the attack.

East 21—Southwest 17

The Bears, becoming accustomed to the underdog spot by this time, brought home their third upset victory in a row as they "froze out" the Indians during the entire game. The Bruins seldom shot, although they connected on 50 per cent of their tries, but again used their noted ball control to good advantage.

East 39—Central 22

East closed out its 1949 Interscholastic League campaign with a comparatively easy victory over the Blue Eagles. Th Bears amassed an enormous lead early in the game and were content to coast the rest of the way. Roark and Hughes paced the Bruins with 13 and 12 points respectively. It was a fitting end to a successful season.

The Bears brought home a second place trophy in the sub-regional tourney by downing Southwest and Hogan before losing to Lillis in the championship game. East was eliminated from the regionals by North Kansas City in the first round game.

Cubs Promise Bright Basketball Future

With the sports spotlight focused on the varsity squad, the accomplishments of the second team are often overlooked. These boys will make up the teams that represent East in the future. The second team serves merely as a stepping stone to a first team position, and provides a chance to gain valuable experience and improve techniques.

The East Cubs of '49, coached by Mr. Les Fields, compiled a record of which they can be proud. They completed league competition with five victories and two losses to tie for first place.

Southeast was the first to fall before the little but mighty Cubs in an airtight ball game that found East on top of a 24-21 score.

It took a brilliant last quarter rally to do it, but the junior edition of the Bears downed Northeast's second team 35-29.

Manual offered little opposition and crumbled before the onslaught 40-27. However, Westport's little Tigers rose up to down the high flying Cubs to the tune of 38-27.

Getting back to their winning ways, East dumped Paseo 30-20 and went on to romp over the hapless Central Eaglets 29-12.

Bob Maize and Willie Sharp carried most of the offensive load, while Jim Wallace's rebounding and the floor play of Herbie Morgan played a large part in the Cubs' success.

Certainly these boys tend to brighten East's basketball future.

Bears Win Second Indoor Title

Placing men in all events, the Bears ran away with their second consecutive Big Seven Indoor Track victory. The speedy Bruins amassed a total of 21 points in the five events to the 14 of second place Southwest.

The East tracksters copped two first place honors as Fred Slocum and Jim Chapman turned in victories in the 60-yard dash and 880-yard run respectively.

Glen Vinson and Jim Jacks ran second and a third respectively behind state champion, Dan Burt, in the 440-yard dash.

Jim Wells, the Bear's ace hurdler, placed fourth in his specialty after getting off to a poor start.

Perhaps the most thrilling race on the program was the 8-lap relay. The Bruins were constantly boxed-in on hand-offs and found themselves slightly behind after 6 laps. It was here that Bob Kibler, anchor man, took matters into his own hands and striding beautifully, passed the field and built up a small lead only to be edged at the tape by a blazing finish by Northeast's Carl King.

The "Big Five" of The Athletic Department

Coach Brown talks with Dale Roark, star football player and All-Star.

Mr. Esther discusses ticket sales with Glenn Vinson.

Coach Nelson in uniform for Missouri Valley.

Coach Sebastian gives a few pointers to Jack Cherry.

Since 1938, Coach Roy Brown, head coach at East High, has been football and track coach. In that length of time, he has had one championship and second place for four years in football. In track, he has had three seconds, a first in the Big Six, and two firsts in the Big Seven. As the Eastonian goes to press, an Interscholastic League victory seems possible. Coach Brown enjoys a reputation for sportmanship and capability among the other coaches of the city.

Coach Gene Sebastian, who is a former graduate and star athlete at East, handles the basketball team. Since his arrival to teach at his Alma Mater in 1947, he has had a second place trophy in the Sub-Regionals. His 1948 team just missed the interscholastic championship.

Coach Les Fields, who instructs the gym classes and athletic squads, also coaches second-team football. Coach Fields was assigned to East in 1942, but soon afterward entered the Armed Forces as Physical Education instructor, serving this country for two years. In 1944, he returned and resumed his position as athletic coach.

Coach Jim Nelson, another East graduate, returned to East to teach boys' physical education this year. Coach Nelson, who graduated in 1942, has had a reputation in athletics in high school and college, and served in the Marines during the war. When the war ended, he decided to continue in school and eventually teach.

Handling the business affairs of the athletic department is Mr. W. S. Esther. He arranges the contests which are held each year to sell tickets.

Coach Fields makes some suggestions to Herbie Morgan and Ed Torello.

Modern dancing and exercise are important phases of physical education.

Girls' Physical Education

Development of co-operation and teamwork, presentation of knowledge and skills, and preparation for a healthful existence are the goals of the Girls' Physical Education department.

The spirit of keen competition that prevails in the games and contests of the Sports Day serves as a means of developing co-operation and teamwork. The rules and skills of a game teach one to realize and respect the privileges and rights of the other person. Preparation for healthful existence is the third and perhaps most important goal, for in every undertaking health is a necessary factor for success.

Sports Days

A fast hockey game develops co-ordination and speed, and it's fun!

Sports Days are important in the activities of the Girls' Physical Education department. This year, hockey Sports Day was held at Southeast High School, on November 11 and the team came through to win all of their games with Southwest, Manual, and Westport.

The basketball Sports Day was held at Northeast High School, February 6, and two out of three of the games were victories for the East team. Although the first game was lost to Central, the girls rallied to win the next two games with Westport and Southeast.

Sports Days are held to promote sportsmanship rather than to determine the championship team. Miss Marian Storms is the coach of all the teams and has trained the girls in the fundamentals of both games.
